NATIONAL ORGANIZATION TO INSURE A SOUND-CONTROLLED ENVIRONMENT
"America's Community Voice on Aviation Noise Issues" • An affiliate of the National League of Cities

January 13, 2004

NOISE (National Organization to Insure a Sound-controlled Environment) is an affiliate of the National League of Cities (NLC). NOISE has served for 32 years as America's oldest nation-wide community based association composed of locally elected officials and other stakeholder organizations who represents thousands of constituents throughout the United States and are committed to reducing the impact of aviation noise on local communities.

Why become a member of NOISE?

- NOISE advocates for federal policies to reduce unreasonable levels of aviation noise through a combination of quieter aircraft, an increase in noise abatement resources, and the opportunity for local communities to contribute to airport expansion decisions.
- NOISE members have input in the key, top-level meetings where regulatory decisions are made.
- NOISE, on behalf of the U.S. Department of Transportation, serves as an advisor to the international ICAO conference establishing new standards for engine noise.
- NOISE helps arrange meetings for its members with Congressional offices and federal agencies.
- NOISE coordinates its lobbying strategy with other powerful organizations such as the National League of Cities (NLC), U.S. Conference of Mayors and the National Association of Counties.
- NOISE staff is in frequent contact with key Members of Congress and senior Congressional staff to monitor and influence development regarding aviation noise mitigation.
- NOISE regularly publishes a newsletter to keep members up to date on lobbying initiatives regulatory action, pending legislation, and noteworthy action taken by airports or local communities.
- NOISE arranges for members to testify before Congress on the behalf of communities affected by aviation noise. The Federal Aviation Administration asked NOISE to appear on a nationally televised forum on the proposal to examine the environmental review process.

➤ NOISE members meet 3 times a year around the country to discuss aviation issues. Two meetings are held in conjunction with the NLC in December (Congress of Cities) and March (Annual Legislative Conference in Washington, D.C.). The NOISE Summer Conference and Aviation Noise Symposium is held in July.

As members of NOISE we know how valuable legislative advocacy and information services are to us. We can assure you that membership in NOISE is equally rewarding.

If aviation noise issues are important to your community, please decide to join NOISE in the near future.

Thank you for your consideration of this opportunity. If you have any questions about the benefits of membership in NOISE, we urge you to contact NOISE Executive Director Dennis McGrann at (202) 544-9841 or via e-mail at contact@aviation-noise.org.

Sincerely,

Jo Thorne
Councilmember, Thornton, Colorado
President, NOISE

"I am exposed to a lot of organizations in my role with the NLC, but NOISE is consistently one of the best at giving me up to date and relevant information that I can use to address an issue of great concern to my constituents." -- Threet Brown, National League of Cities Board of Directors and Councilmember from East Point, Georgia.

"NOISE was able to provide me with the ultimate platform from which to air my constituents' aviation noise concerns: testifying before the U.S. House of Representatives Transportation Committee." -- Mary Griffin, President, Board of Supervisors, County of San Mateo, California (former).

"NOISE is an invaluable resource for elected officials like me from across the nation who are concerned about aviation noise and what we can do about it." -- Conrad Bowers, National League of Cities Transportation Infrastructure and Services Steering Committee and Mayor of Bridgeton, Missouri.

LISTEN TO WHAT THEY ARE SAYING ABOUT N.O.I.S.E. . .

"Local governments can effect change in federal environmental policy in the aviation industry. The NOISE organization makes that happen." – Congressman James L. Oberstar, Ranking Member on the U.S. House Transportation Committee

"I am exposed to a lot of organizations in my role with the NLC, but NOISE is consistently one of the best at giving me up to date and relevant information that I can actually use to address an issue of great concern to my constituents." – Councilmember Threet Brown of East Point, Georgia, National League of Cities Board of Directors

"NOISE was able to provide me with the ultimate platform from which to air my constituents' aviation noise concerns: testifying before the U.S. House of Representatives Transportation Committee." – Mary Griffin, former Mayor of Millbrae, California and President of the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors

"NOISE is an invaluable resource for elected officials like me from across the nation who are concerned about aviation noise and what we can do about it." – Mayor Conrad Bowers of Bridgeton, Missouri, National League of Cities Transportation Infrastructure and Services Steering Committee

"Maintaining a presence in Washington, DC to stand up for local governments is absolutely necessary when faced with better funded and well-connected adversaries. Without NOISE we are defenseless." – Councilmember Sandra Colvin Roy of Minneapolis, Minnesota

"The regular federal updates we receive from NOISE have empowered my community by leveling the playing field with the airport on access to crucial information. NOISE arms my community with the information we need to conduct thoughtful, well-informed negotiations." – Councilmember Karen Blilie of Greenwood Village, Colorado

"Hosting the NOISE conference in Louisville helped improve local airport-community relations a hundred-fold." – Mary Rose Evans, City of Parkway Village, Kentucky

"Short of buying the airport myself, I can't think of a better way to combat my city's noise problem than to join this organization." – Councilmember Skip Lowry of St. John, Missouri

NOISE serves to allow communities to join together and with a single voice inject the concerns of their constituents into the national debate on airport expansion policy, a debate which all too often is dominated by airports, airlines, and aircraft whose priorities may differ from a community's. NOISE seeks to resolve noise concerns by bringing affected communities, local airport officials and federal policymakers together to work on airport expansion proposals responsibly and collaboratively. NOISE also advocates for federal policies to reduce unreasonable levels of aviation noise through a combination of quieter aircraft, increased noise abatement resources, and the opportunity for local communities to contribute to airport expansion decisions.

NOISE members have input in the key, top-level meetings where regulatory decisions are made. Since 2000 the U.S. House of Representatives Transportation and Infrastructure Committee asked NOISE to testify before the Committee twice on behalf of communities affected by aviation noise; the U.S. Department of Transportation asked NOISE to serve as an advisor to the international ICAO conference establishing new standards for engine noise, and; the Federal Aviation Administration asked NOISE to appear on a nationally televised forum on the proposal to examine the environmental review process.

NOISE regularly publishes a newsletter to keep members up to date on lobbying initiatives, regulatory action, pending legislation, and noteworthy action taken by airports or local communities. The Washington, DC based NOISE staff is in frequent contact with key Members of Congress and senior congressional staff to monitor and influence developments regarding aviation noise mitigation. NOISE coordinates its lobbying strategy with other powerful organizations such as National League of Cities, U.S. Conference of Mayors and National Association of Counties, and NOISE helps arrange meetings for members with Congressional offices and federal agencies.

NOISE members meet 3 times annually around the country to discuss aviation issues. These forums provide an outstanding opportunity for the exchange of opinion and information among the diverse interests in the aviation noise community.

The aviation industry continues to rapidly grow. There is a consensus in Washington, DC that airport capacity will have to increase dramatically-- and soon-- to keep pace with skyrocketing ridership that is expected to reach one billion annually by 2010. As air traffic increases, aviation noise issues will be of paramount concern to communities located near airports. NOISE will continue to work with member communities to help reduce the impact of aviation noise.

If aviation noise issues are important to your community, please call NOISE at (202) 544-9840 email contact@aviation-noise.org, or visit our web site at www.aviation-noise.org.
